Embodiments

Embodiments are the physical forms that we take on in the digital world. They are the avatars that we use to interact with others and the environment. They are the digital selves that we create and that we use to express ourselves. They are the digital bodies that we inhabit and that we use to explore the virtual world.

Merging Identities

will be the first of its kind, showing a female figure whose body is a combination of two different people. The artist, who has been working on this project for a long time, says that the idea of merging identities is a central theme in her work. She says that the figure is a metaphor for the way we all have different parts of ourselves that we don't always acknowledge. The work is a celebration of the human condition and the way we all have different parts of ourselves that we don't always acknowledge. The work is a celebration of the human condition and the way we all have different parts of ourselves that we don't always acknowledge.
